

NUMBER 218.

"No; no hoisting works—not if I know it. You can fool away a good deal of good, hard coin on hoisting works." "How in thunder do you run your mine?" "On the assessment plan, sir. That's the latest and most approved method. When we have a good map of the lower workings we don't need any works to speak of. I keep a man in Virginia at $60 a month to superintend the location and write weekly letters, and I stay in San Francisco, in my office on Pine street, and levy the assessments every sixty days; that's as often as the law allows. I am the President, Board of Trustees, Secretary, Treasurer, and everything—more especially the Treasurer. Of course I draw salary for all the offices, and when I get through drawing salaries I turn the rest over to the agent in Virginia to pay off the hands; he saves enough to pay himself. This is what I call scientific mining, sir. You get the silver out of the pockets of the stockholders and leave the vast argentiferous and auriferous deposits in your claim for your children, who can go right ahead and develop the mine just as soon as the public quit putting up, which isn't at all likely to happen. As long as people are being born in Nevada and California my mine will run on like a chronometer clock." "But," said the Utah man, "my style of mining keep lots of men at work." "So does mine," quoth the Golden Gate chap. "Thousands of men are working night and day to pay the assessments." It keeps the country as busy as a beehive, and the speaker sauntered to the telegraph office to order assessment No. 36. —Denver News.

THE Middle Trace Turnpike, formerly the Hills City Turnpike, has been incorporated.

WE regret to announce the death of Robert D. Johnson at Germantown, on Wednesday evening.

THE Limestone bridge over the Limestone creek has been repaired and trains are running again as usual.

JOHN B. GAINES is to issue during this month the first number of the Park City Tri-Weekly Times, at Bowling Green.

THE body of Mrs. Hazelrigg, colored, who was drowned by the flood in Limestone creek, was found at Ripley yesterday. The remains were interred at Maysville this morning.

THE papers tell us that lottery ticket No. 85,003 brought to its lucky owner $15,000. They fail to tell us how many hundred thousand tickets brought to their unlucky owners disappointment and perchance want.

MR. HENRY FROMAN, a well known young citizen of East Maysville, is a candidate for constable in that precinct. He is intelligent, active and industrious, and if elected, would serve the public satisfactorily.

ONE thousand copies of the DAILY BULLETIN will be printed and circulated each day, during the camp-meeting at Park's Hill. The regular issue has reached seven hundred, and please to remember that the EVENING BULLETIN is only seven months old.

Deering Camp Meeting.

Opening Day of the Great Religious Gathering—Interesting Gossip About People and Things.

From our Special Correspondent.

All is now in readiness to receive the crowds that will gather when the Kentucky Central shall have repaired damages and is again in running order. Somewhere we have heard a proverb that runs after this fashion: "We never appreciate the water until the well runs dry." To one acquainted with Maysville under ordinary circumstances it was quite evident on Tuesday last that the detention of trains was a serious drawback. Frequent, repeated and unjust accusations have been made against this line. We do not appreciate, perhaps, the disadvantages under which the present gentlemanly managers have labored. The detention has, of course, interfered with proceedings here, but soon things will resume their wonted course. Families at present, are coming in by private conveyances.

After needed rest, we have been enabled to make a more careful survey of the many improvements that have been made. The institution has the appearance of being a permanent one. From this center moral influences go out that will tell mightily on the welfare of numbers. Thousands who have tented here whilst pilgrims will finally be congregated in an abode that is permanent. This may be a day of sentiment and latitudinarianism in some quarters, but at this point the design is to make a strong and simple presentation of the grand truths of christianity.

The elegant new auditorium will soon be formally set apart to religious services. Dr. J. B. West, of Nashville, will officiate on this occasion. All who heard his masterly discourses here last year will be eager to hear him again. We are glad to learn that our own Kentucky bishop, "the old man eloquent," H. H. Kavanaugh, will be present.

Dr. T. J. Dodd, the accomplished scholar and distinguished divine, that we lent to Tennessee for a while, will again be here. Timely notice will be given of any specially interesting services. A noteworthy feature is the "Children's Day." The little ones have not been forgotten. However, prominence has been given to the children's meeting heretofore, but this year arrangements have been made to reach a larger number, and to stir up additional interest in behalf of the young.

In order to a well rounded manhood or womanhood there must be judicious training, mental and moral as well as physical. By to-morrow at least the usual exercises will be resumed. The managers have been unusually pains-taking to secure the services of men who have studied the question which they will discuss. Their sermons and addresses will not be confined to the fortunate ones who gather here. By means of the BULLETIN an intelligent audience all through the country can be reached. The seeds of truth will thus be scattered broadcast and may germinate and bring to maturity abundant fruit. A little effort on the part of those in sympathy with the movement and those who have it immediately in hand will result in much good. The celebrated Talmage and other eminent divines reach thousands through the press that otherwise would never have opportunity to consider their teachings. As special arrangements have been made to present to the public the matured thought of leading Methodist divines it remains to be seen with what favor the enterprise will be received by those who can help in a grand work that is being done in behalf of humanity.

JOTTINGS.

The position of your correspondent for sometime to-day was suggestive of patience sitting on a monument and smiling at grief. Although first here he hopes to remain until the finale.

T. J. Nolin, superintendent of the eating hall is happy once more. He has his department as neat as a new pin.

Unless the preachers are pithy and pointed we fear many hearers will be prone to fall asleep seated on the elegant and comfortable benches with which the auditorium has just been furnished.

Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Dorsey have been indefatigable in their efforts to have everything in the nicest possible order.

Col. Parks can survey with pride a monument erected by industry and integrity.

Mrs. Throckmorton, of Fairview, was the first to move into camp. She is accompanied by an interesting group of children.

The genial "Doc." Miller was the second one to pitch his tent. His family accompany him.

Dr. Morris Evans and wife arrived this morning.

Prof. Stevens is here. The music will be all that could be desired.

Miss E. Belle Polk, of Perryville, a very superior alto singer has been secured to assist in the services of this meeting.

Miss Ella Gardiner, of Irvine, also came who will be of great advantage as a soprano singer.

The first bell for the introductory exercises was rung at 2.37 p. m.

Dr. M. Evans conducted the exercises.

He read 39 verses of the 1st chapter of St. John. The choir sang us the opening hymn, No. 177, in Gospel Hymns, "Seek-to Save." Preaching was announced for evening. So the meeting is now formally inaugurated.

PERSONALS.

Points About People Here and Elsewhere.

Mr. B. F. Warnock, of Greenup, is in Maysville to-day.

Mr. Chas. A. Miller, of De Graff, Ohio, is visiting Mr. R. L. Hoeflich.

Mrs. Tillie Schreiber, and Mrs. L. Schreiber, of Cincinnati, are the guests of Col. Fred. Schatzmann.

Miss Ella Belle Hill, of Midway, W. Va. is visiting her relatives, the family of Mr. A. B. Greenwood. She is on her way to Cincinnati to attend the Conservatory of Music.

THAT BIG SHOW.

Look Out for the Street Parade.

On to-morrow (Saturday), the Big U. S. Circus, Museum and the Great Eastern Hippodrome, will pitch their tent in our own town and give two performances—afternoon and evening. This is one of the largest and best conducted shows in America, and is replete with charming novelties and brilliant artists. The street spectacular cavalcade is a sight once in a lifetime, and as a free show is really worth going miles to witness. We advise all to be on hand early and enjoy the sight. In the menagerie is the monster working elephant "Bessie," who is hitched to a plow, and does the work of eight horses, without a seeming exertion; twelve lions, amongst which are the largest and oldest, the smallest and youngest ever put on exhibition. In one cage the monster "Rose" and five cubs, nine days old; in another a she wolf and six cubs, twelve days old, and to crown all the Shetland mare "Minnie" and her cots, ten days old, and about the size of a good spaniel dog; the largest Bengal tiger ever seen in captivity, and the most ponderous living specimen of the Blue Nile hippopotamus on this continent, with an endless variety of gay plumed birds and tribes of monkeys. Don't miss the grand free show on the lot immediately after the street procession.

Ohio has at last awakened to the fact that the United States has a History and that it was necessary for the children to learn something of it. The teachers over there are now lamenting because a new branch has been added to the curriculum of studies and nothing added to their pay.

The Gulf Stream and Europe.

There was a time within the human epoch, says James Geikie, in an article on "The Gulf Stream and the Panama Canal," when the European climate was so genial that many delicate southern species of plants flourished luxuriantly in regions where they cannot now exist. Thus in the neighborhood of Paris, the fig tree, the laurel of the Canary Islands, and other Southern species, found a congenial habitat. The Canary Island laurel does not grow further north now than near Toulon, on the borders of the Mediterranean. It flowers in winter, and repeated frosts would therefore prevent its reproducing its kind. That this plant formerly flourished near Paris is thus a striking proof of changed climatic conditions, for the winters in Northern France must then have been extremely genial. The land and fresh-water shells which were contemporaneous with that remarkable flora in Northwestern Europe tell precisely the same tale, and this is still further illustrated and confirmed by the character of the mammalian fauna. Among the commoner animals at that time occupants of England, France, etc., were hippopotami, elephants, rhinoceroses, lions, tigers, hyenas, etc., and vast numbers of cervine and bovine animals which still occupy the temperate latitudes of Europe.

That such genial climatic conditions were due in large measure to a great increase in the volume of warm water flowing into the North Atlantic seems just as certain as that the Arctic climate of the glacial period was largely induced by a very considerable decrease or even an entire stoppage of that heat-bearing current. The presence of many Mediterranean shells in the ancient raised beaches of Scandinavia, the occurrence of mussel banks in the coast-lands of Spitzbergen, the appearance here and there off the coasts of Scotland, the Faroes and Iceland, of Southern species of shell-fish, and the presence of isolated colonies of Southern mollusks in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, are all indicative of a former much greater influx of warm water into Northern regions than is now the case. Those remarkable colonies of Southern species are living evidence of the last epoch of extremely genial conditions experienced in Northwestern Europe—an epoch during which great forest growths overspread wide regions in the North—covering the British Islands, the inner and outer Hebrides, the Orkneys and the Shetland Islands, all Norway up to the extreme north, and most extensive areas which to-day lie submerged in the sea.

First Temperance Law.

The following extract from Hon. Chas. B. Flood's correspondence to the Cincinnati Enquirer, under the head of "Old Times Politics," shows how Ohio's first temperance legislation under the present Constitution was adopted:

"The passage of the first temperance law afforded an illustration of the want of good faith which not unfrequently shows itself in legislative doings. It requires a majority of the votes of the members elected to each branch of the Legislature to pass a bill, and in all cases the yeas and nays are required. The temperance law was being passed—the yeas and nays were being called—when the Clerk discovered a member, pencil in hand, keeping count of the vote. The member had evidently been drinking, and, although the call was made slowly and distinctively to give the member a chance to keep a correct account, yet he missed it by one vote. When his name was called he did not vote; when called a second time, after all the other members had voted, he did vote, and his vote passed the bill. He thought it required, as it did by his count, two votes to pass it; but, too far gone in his cups to count correctly, it required but one, and when he voted in its favor that one vote was supplied, and the temperance bill was passed. Some of his indignant friends rushed to his seat and rudely demanded that he move a reconsideration, but the demand was made in such a manner as to excite the anger of the member, and he refused. Thus was the first temperance law under the present Constitution passed by the vote of a member in a situation too far gone to count the number of Senators voting."
